
Executive Base Network Expands Private Office Space Rentals for Growing Businesses

November 13, 2025

San Ramon, California - November 13, 2025 -
Executive Base Network, a woman-owned office space provider in San Ramon, California, is addressing the increasing demand for flexible private office solutions as businesses seek alternatives to traditional long-term leases. The company, founded by entrepreneur Tara Teodoro, offers fully private offices alongside its existing virtual office, conference room, and coworking services.

The expansion of private office offerings comes as San Ramon continues to attract businesses seeking professional workspace solutions without the commitment and overhead of conventional commercial leases. The private offices feature modern amenities including 55-inch Samsung monitors, high-speed internet connectivity, and access to fully equipped conference rooms with 65-inch displays and Clarus glassboards.

"Businesses today need flexibility more than ever, and we're seeing tremendous interest from companies that want professional office space in San Ramon without being locked into multi-year agreements," said Tara Teodoro, founder of Executive Base Network. "Our private office solutions provide the professional environment companies need while maintaining the flexibility to scale up or down as their business evolves."

The private office spaces are available on an hourly, daily, or monthly basis, starting at $20 per hour or $100 per day. This pricing structure allows businesses to maintain a professional presence while controlling costs. The offices come fully furnished with modern furniture and include 24/7 access for full-time members.

Beyond private offices, Executive Base Network provides comprehensive business support services including virtual office packages with professional business addresses, live receptionist services, and mail handling. These services enable remote businesses to establish credibility and maintain a professional image without the expense of physical office space.

The facility's conference rooms accommodate various team sizes and include audiovisual equipment, high-speed internet, and comfortable seating arrangements. Meeting rooms start at $35 per hour, providing an affordable solution for businesses needing occasional conference space for client meetings, team workshops, or presentations.

"We've built more than just office space; we've created a business community where independent professionals and growing companies can thrive," added Teodoro. "Our clients appreciate the direct access they have to ownership and our commitment to transparent pricing without hidden fees."

The demand for flexible office solutions has grown significantly as businesses adapt to changing work patterns and seek cost-effective alternatives to traditional office leases. San Ramon's strategic location in the East Bay provides convenient access to both San Francisco and Silicon Valley markets, making it an attractive location for businesses serving the broader Bay Area.

Executive Base Network serves a diverse client base including independent professionals, startups, remote workers, and established businesses seeking satellite offices. The company's flexible lease options and range of services from virtual offices to full-time dedicated spaces accommodate businesses at every stage of growth.

Founded by Tara Teodoro, Executive Base Network has established itself as a leading provider of flexible office solutions in San Ramon. The company specializes in creating professional workspace environments that adapt to modern business needs while fostering a supportive community atmosphere for business success.
