Grimes Paint & Body Reinforces Family-Owned Repair Standards

June 15, 2026

Forney, TX - June 15, 2026 -
Grimes Paint & Body announced a continued focus on family-owned repair standards as the company marks more than a decade of serving vehicle owners through its collision and auto body repair operations.

Founded in 2013, Grimes Paint & Body was established by Edward and Gina Grimes with the goal of providing collision repair services centered on vehicle safety, repair quality, and customer communication. Since opening, the company has expanded its capabilities while maintaining an independent approach to collision repair and customer support.

According to the company, modern collision repair requires a structured process that extends beyond repairing visible vehicle damage. New vehicle designs often incorporate advanced materials, integrated electronics, driver-assistance technologies, and manufacturer-specific repair procedures that can influence repair planning and execution.

Grimes Paint & Body states that its repair process includes vehicle inspections, damage analysis, repair planning, communication with vehicle owners, and quality-control procedures throughout the repair process. The company also assists customers with insurance-related documentation and repair coordination following vehicle accidents.

"From the beginning, our focus has been on repairing vehicles according to established procedures while providing customers with clear information throughout the process," said Edward Grimes, owner of Grimes Paint & Body. "As vehicle technology continues to evolve, maintaining repair standards and communication remains an important part of serving our customers."

The company provides a range of collision-related services, including collision repair, auto body repair, paintless dent repair evaluations, refinishing services, and RV repair. According to Grimes Paint & Body, repair planning has become increasingly important as vehicle manufacturers continue introducing new materials, structural designs, and integrated safety systems. A thorough assessment allows technicians to identify potential concerns that may not be immediately visible and helps establish a repair strategy based on the vehicle's specific construction and repair requirements.

The company notes that many modern vehicles require documentation, repair verification procedures, and ongoing communication between repair professionals, parts suppliers, insurance providers, and vehicle owners. Coordinating these elements has become an important part of maintaining an organized repair process while helping customers remain informed throughout repairs.

As vehicle manufacturers continue introducing new technologies, repair facilities face increasing requirements related to technician education, repair equipment, documentation, and quality assurance. Grimes Paint & Body notes that manufacturer repair information and repair planning play important roles in helping guide modern repair procedures.

The company also highlights customer communication as part of its overall repair process. Vehicle owners often have questions regarding repair timelines, insurance claims, parts availability, and repair procedures following an accident. Grimes Paint & Body says ongoing communication helps customers better understand the status of repairs and expectations throughout the process.

In addition to repair services, the company provides a Limited Lifetime Warranty on qualifying repair and paint workmanship for as long as the original vehicle owner owns the vehicle. The warranty reflects the company's ongoing emphasis on accountability and repair consistency.

As the collision repair industry continues evolving, Grimes Paint & Body says it remains focused on maintaining repair procedures that support vehicle restoration, customer confidence, and long-term repair quality.
